What is Bullying?

- Bullying is the deliberate intention to harm someone who does not have the power to stop it.

- Bullying, harassment or any form of discrimination, is immoral and can be unlawful because it interferes with the right of a person to feel safe and valued as a member of a community.

- Bullying takes many forms. It can be:
  - Face-to-face such as fighting, pushing, taunting, insulting, embarrassing, intimidating and invading personal space, AND Behind-the-back such as writing threatening or offensive messages, sending distressing emails and writing anonymous notes that are hurtful.
  - Done individually such as a person mocking or teasing someone, AND It can be done as a group by such means as social exclusion or hate group recruitment.
  - Physical, AND Psychological.
  - Sexual harassment which involves behaviours such as unwanted sexual touching, inappropriate joking, exposure, making sexual advances or demeaning someone due to their sexual orientation, AND Racial harassment which involves behaviours such as social exclusion, teasing, taunting and threats based on another person’s race.
  - The causing of hurt by traditional methods such as punching, kicking and spreading hurtful rumours, AND The causing of hurt by contemporary means such as cyber bullying, sexting, engaging in identity theft or by trashing someone on social networking sites.

The key features of bullying are that it:
- causes hurt and distress,
- is repeated,
- involves the use of power in an unfair way.

Bullying need not always be done by the older or stronger. “Bullying up” is bullying done by the smaller, the younger and the weaker, who either use anonymous means to bully, such as cyber bullying, or overt means to bully, knowing that any retaliation would make the provoked person look like they are the bully.

Symptoms of Bullying
For behaviour to be classified as bullying, it needs to involve repeated actions that are designed to cause hurt. Not having friends or not being popular isn’t necessarily a sign that a person is being bullied. It may simply mean a person lacks inter-personal skills. There is a difference between bullying behaviour and what can be described as normal interpersonal conflict.

The symptoms associated with bullying include, but are not limited to; not wanting to go to school, anger, tears, depression, low self-esteem and a raft of psychosomatic symptoms such as headaches and stomach aches. Bed-wetting and sleeplessness can also be symptoms of bullying, particularly in the young. Withdrawal and reluctance to ‘join in’ can be a warning sign, as can truancy, misbehaviour and aggressive behaviour. Cuts, bruising, torn clothing, requests for extra food or money as well as a decline in academic performance can also be clues that a student may be suffering from bullying.

- Any form of bullying is unworthy of a Kingsman and against all that The King’s School stands for.
- Those who are identified as bullies will be dealt with firmly and may be expelled from the School.
Cyber Bullying

Cyber bullying is causing hurt via modern technologies such as the Internet and other forms of social media, and through the use of smart phones and other mobile devices.

Cyber bullying is a growing problem in society. Modern technologies empower the individual, even the most unlikely of individuals, with an immense capacity to cause harm. It is also an attractive means of bullying for it can, under certain conditions, be carried out with relative anonymity.

Cyber bullying can be particularly damaging because of the capacity it has to humiliate, hurt and harm a person in front of a huge ‘audience’.

A dangerous feature of cyber bullying is that it can be done quickly and easily. On an impulse, a person can create emotional havoc for another and do so before the voice of reason hinds at the inappropriateness of the action.

A further problem with cyber bullying is that the bully is often unaware of the extent of the harm they are causing because cyber bullying seldom occurs face-to-face. The feedback is muted by distance so that the bully is protected from an understanding of the awfulness of their behaviour.

Cyber bullying represents unlawful activity that may result in police laying charges. Cyber bullying has been linked to depression, self-harm and even suicide.

Examples of Cyber bullying:
- Sending hateful or threatening comments or pictures via MSN, mobile phone or the Internet and by social networking sites such as MySpace and Facebook.
- Using modern technologies to engage in the social exclusion of someone and in hate group recruitment.
- Posting rude, explicit or embarrassing messages or pictures about someone on the Net.
- Stealing someone’s identity in order to harm them in some way.
- Putting pressure on a person to send revealing or compromising pictures of themselves.
- Covertly filming, recording or taking a picture of someone and posting the images on the Net to cause hurt.
- ‘Outing’ and disseminating confidential information about someone.
- ‘Flaming’ and multi-messaging to clog up a person’s electronic system and to cause them distress.
- Using aliases and pseudonyms in chat rooms and on social networking sites in order to harass and upset.
- Engaging in cyber-stalking and the invading of privacy.
- Referring to your school in a negative or disparaging way on the Net.

Sexting

Another expression of cyber bullying is sexting.

Sexting is taking sexually explicit photos and making them available for others to see via a carriage service such as mobile phone or computer.

Sending explicit images of anyone, including yourself, is a crime if you are under the age of 18 years. If the person in the picture is under 16 years, it can be a very serious crime resulting in charges of paedophilia.

Cyber anonymity

Students need to remember that something sent electronically can never be entirely removed even with a press of the ‘delete’ button. The image may emerge at any stage in their future life and lead to serious consequences.

Using pseudonyms, passwords and avatars does not protect the identity of a cyber bully. Technologies exist to identify those who mis-use modern technologies to harm others.

- Do not engage in cyber bullying.
- Do not post any image or comment that is designed to cause hurt. It is morally wrong and in many cases, it is also illegal.
It should also be noted that even if cyber bullying is engaged in while not at school, the matter will be taken up by the School because the moral welfare of its students is of importance to The King’s School as is anything that brings the School into disrepute.

Students can protect themselves from some forms of cyber harm by noting the following advice:
1. Never tell anyone, even your friends, your passwords, private details or access codes.
2. When speaking to someone you do not know on the Net, be aware they may not be who they say they are.
3. Be aware that there are predators who use the internet to lure young people into inappropriate sexual relationships. Others use tricks, such as pretending to be a bank, to get the victim to share their confidential financial details. This usually results in identity fraud and the stealing of money.
4. Never tell people you do not know well what your address is, or how they can meet up with you.
5. Always be careful what you say or what you show a person in confidence on the Net for it is never guaranteed to remain confidential. The information may be sent on to others.
6. Know that the most frequent use of the Net is for illegal activities such as scams, pornography and gambling.

Finally, if you find yourself the victim of cyber bullying, keep the evidence and report the bullying to an appropriate adult. It is generally best not to respond to the cyber bully, or give them any satisfaction they have caused you hurt. If you do respond to the bully, do not do so while hot with anger. This can result in mutual cyber bullying which means both parties become guilty of bullying.

- One’s “digital footprint” may be accessed many years after material is posted online and used by others, eg. prospective employers and the media.
How does The King’s School discourage bullying?

Bullying is totally against the mission and purpose of The King’s School. The School is committed to providing an educational environment in which students feel valued and secure. To achieve this end, the School will seek to create a school-wide culture that:

- Allows students to flourish free from discrimination, harassment or any form of bullying.
- Does not tolerate, condone or trivialise bullying behaviours.
- Is aware of what constitutes bullying behaviour.
- Provides support to the victims of bullying.
- Deals firmly with bullies so that they either stop their bullying or leave the School.

The methods used by the School to discourage bullying will vary from time-to-time, with new initiatives being introduced when thought appropriate. The measures that have been used to discourage bullying at The King’s School include, but are not limited to:

- Employing a suitable range of sanctions to deal with and discourage bullies. These sanctions include suspension and expulsion.
- Putting up signage about the School to promote a bully-free environment.
- Printing anti-bullying policies in student diaries and on the School’s website.
- Promoting a bully-free environment in assemblies, chapel, tutor periods, Year-level meetings and House meetings.
- Promoting a bully-free environment in the staff handbook, in School policy documents and in occasional articles in publications such as The King’s Herald.
- Promoting a bully-free environment in PDHPE classes.
- Undertaking confidential Year-level surveys of student well-being and bullying behaviour and following up on identified bullies and victims.
- Undertaking House surveys on boarder well-being.
- Designing an online assessment of a student’s personal feelings related to bullying.
- Conducting exit interviews.
- Ensuring effective pastoral support for students through the appointment of Tutors, Year-level Co-ordinators and Housemasters.
- Incorporating instruction about the School’s anti-bullying stance in the Learning Leadership tutorial material used by students in Years 8-11.
- Incorporating anti-bullying guidelines in the Preparatory School’s code of behaviour for students and in their statement of students’ rights and responsibilities.
- Incorporating anti-bullying guidelines in the Duty of Care training program for boarding staff.
- Employing Chaplains and School Counsellors who have specialist skills in helping both victims of bullying and identified bullies.
- Having a prefectorial team who support the School’s anti-bullying policy and who students feel free to inform about any bullying.
- Instituting a “Captain’s Court” to deal with grievances that students want handled by their peers rather than by staff.
- Instituting a Student Support Team to monitor the well-being of students at risk.
- Training staff to detect bullying behaviours.
- Encouraging staff to adopt classroom management techniques that discourage opportunities for bullying behaviours.
- Employing staff who model tolerance, empathy and acceptance of individual differences.
- Encouraging staff to take their supervision duties seriously so that there is a pervasive sense of staff presence when on duty.
- Reviewing the School’s anti-bullying policy from time-to-time, in order to ensure that it remains effective and relevant.
The effectiveness of these strategies rests with ALL members of the School’s community.

To assist the Headmaster to assess the success or otherwise of the anti-bullying strategies being pursued, an “Annual Report on Bullying at The King’s School” will be prepared that summarises the quantitative data drawn from records kept and surveys undertaken at the School. The Annual Report will contain a section on the conclusions that can be drawn from that data along with comparisons against previous years’ conclusions to enable an understanding as to whether bullying is being reduced or is increasing.

To assist the Headmaster in preparing the Annual Report on bullying, the School’s Student Support Team will have their responsibilities expanded to include the preparation of that Annual Report. The Team will also be responsible for reviewing anti-bullying measures and making recommendations to amend these with the aim of reducing instances of bullying.

The Student Support Team is Chaired by the School Chaplain and will be comprised of representatives from the School’s Pastoral Support Service areas, the Senior School and the Preparatory School. The Team will be assisted by the Deputy Bursar in preparing the Annual Report, which will be submitted to the School Council each year.

- The King’s School reserves the right to alter the means and ways by which it discourages bullying. If any should like to suggest an improvement in the way bullying might be discouraged at The King’s School, they are invited to send their suggestions to the Deputy Headmaster or the Head of the Preparatory School.
What should you do if you are being bullied?

If you are being bullied, it is important that you talk to an adult who is in a position to help you.

There can be a reluctance to report bullying because of a fear of being labelled a ‘dobber’ and going against an unwritten code of student behaviour. This concern is understandable but must not prevent you from reporting bullying behaviour. Most students dislike bullying and would support your attempts to stop it.

Some students may not want to report bullying because they feel it might only make matters worse. Again, this fear is understandable, but most teachers are trained in ways to help victims of bullying in a manner that protects the victim.

- It can take courage to challenge the bully, to expose them for who they are and to play a part in improving our community by ridding it of bullying behaviour. The King’s School expects its students to show this courage and not tolerate bullying as a bystander or as a victim.

  Our school motto “fortiter et fideliter” means “bravely and faithfully” and that is what is expected of Kingsmen – that they be brave and faithful in getting rid of any bullying they encounter. Everyone at The King’s School should be committed to making the School a safe and happy community.

If you are being bullied, you must tell a responsible adult who has the capacity to help. Options include:

- Parents, guardian or adult relatives.
- Teacher, Coach, Housemaster, Year Coordinator, Tutor.
- Counsellor, Chaplain.
- Headmaster, Deputy Headmaster, Head of the Preparatory School or any member of the School Executive.

Others who can be informed include:

- Monitors, Prefects, House or School Captain.
- Doctor or Nurse at the School’s Health Centre.
- Matron.

REMEMBER

The King’s School is committed to providing a safe and happy learning environment. Therefore, the School
If you are being bullied, you are encouraged to do the RITE thing:

R = RECOGNISE
you have the right to feel safe and to operate in an environment free of bullying.

I = INFORM
the bullies that you want them to stop. Do this in a polite but firm way.

T = TELL
a responsible adult about the bullying.

E = EVALUATE
the situation. If it does not improve, seek further help.

- When bullied, try not to get angry or show that you are angry. If your anger is obvious, the bully has the satisfaction of knowing that they have controlled your emotions.
- Admit to imperfections. It can send positive messages about you having a realistic understanding of yourself.
- Use non-offensive humour. Bullying can be blunted by a good laugh. The capacity to laugh at yourself can create a bonding with a group that might otherwise remain hostile.
- Review your own behaviours and body language. If you look like a victim you can become a victim. Squared shoulders and a smile can do much to deter a bully.
- Avoid trouble spots. There are always places that are high-risk areas for bullying. Avoid them.
- Develop your ‘emotional quotient’. This includes the ability to read body language, to sense mood, to be intuitive and empathetic. Such skills not only make you less of a target, they can enable you to see where a situation may be heading. Early detection of possible bullying can provide options for avoiding it.
- Surround yourself with good friends. Those with strong friendships are usually less of a target for bullies.
- If bullied, try not to retaliate for this can often inflame the situation.
- If you are being bullied, remind yourself that it is the bully who has the problem, not you. Try to think through what inadequacies the bully might have that causes them to behave this way. Understanding a bully is a great way to begin to solve the problem.

Don’t be a victim
Victims can attract bullying behaviour. This is not to excuse bullying or condone it in any way. It is to suggest that victims can sometimes reduce their chances of being a target if they:
- Maintain good self-esteem.
- Work on fitting in, getting involved and making a rich contribution to the School.
- Model kindness, thoughtfulness and respect.
- Don’t catastrophise situations out of all proportion.
- Develop an ability to deal with:
  - Failure and success
  - Threats and fear
  - Rejection and disappointment
  - Anger and hurt
- Try and maintain good physical fitness, it can help with resilience.

Having noted the above, it is vital that anyone who is a victim of bullying recognise that they have been wronged. They must report the matter and not suffer in silence.

IF YOU ARE BEING BULLIED TELL SOMEONE.

IT CAN TAKE COURAGE TO CHALLENGE THE BULLY, TO EXPOSE THEM FOR WHO THEY ARE AND TO PLAY A PART IN IMPROVING OUR COMMUNITY BY RIDDING IT OF BULLYING BEHAVIOUR.
How to help a son who is being bullied

Introduction
The most important thing a parent can do to help a son who is being bullied is to provide love and reassurance and to support them in their quest to solve the problem. A report of bullying by a son should always be taken seriously.

Parents can take comfort that the bully-free world they want for their son is also wanted by the School. Therefore, parents are invited to contact the School should they become aware that their son is being bullied. The School appreciates being able to partner with parents in solving bullying problems.

Finding out
Sometimes, a son can be reluctant to tell their parents that they are being bullied. Creating a culture of openness within the home can help. Solutions can be as simple as having evening meals together, without the distraction of the television, and making it a regular habit to enquire how a son is feeling.

It can be useful to use an intermediary such as an older sibling, grandparent or close friend in order to find out if a son is being bullied. Use can also be made of the family doctor, child psychologist or School counsellor.

What can parents do to reduce the chances of their son being bullied?

There are a number of things parents can do to reduce the chances of their son being bullied. These include:
- Developing their son’s ‘emotional quotient’ (EQ). Sons who have been brought up without many brothers and sisters, or who spend a lot of time playing alone in front of the TV or computer screen, may need extra training in how to deal with the bumps and bruises of living in a community with others. They need to be trained in behaviours that others find attractive. They need to learn the social graces of sharing and of adapting behaviours that are appropriate to an occasion. This is particularly true of some cultures who may not fully understand the behavioural codes thought attractive to the predominant culture of the School.
- Teaching their son how to react when they are being bullied. The main message is that:

  THEY MUST TELL SOMEONE

- Instituting good management systems in the home that monitor the presence, or otherwise, of cyber bullying. This includes, but is not limited to:
  - Making sure their son knows about the various forms of cyber bullying and how to identify them.
  - Reminding sons not to share personal details, passwords, security or access information with anyone, even their closest friends.
- Advising their son that if they suffer from cyber bullying, to save the information and report it to the proper authorities.
- Becoming more computer literate and knowing about such things as privacy settings and net filters.
- Occasionally Googling their son’s name to see what is being posted about him online.
- Encouraging their son to conduct himself properly in “Cyberia” and to ensure that his “digital footprint” is one he, and his parents, would be proud of.
- Reminding their sons of the deceit and scams that are prevalent on the Net.
- Encouraging computer use in an open family area, so that there is effective monitoring of online activity.
- Partnering with the School. When some parents hear that their son has been bullied they can get very angry. This is entirely understandable. However, this anger can become destructive if it spills over and alienates those agencies that can help, such as the School. The King’s School abhors bullying and, as shown in Section 3 of the School’s anti-bullying policy, takes active steps to try and reduce bullying.
- Avoiding over-protective parenting. Most King’s parents are wonderful at parenting. However, a few parents engage in over protection or ‘helicopter parenting’. These parents can be difficult to work with as they are prone to ‘bubble wrapping’ their son and to catastrophising hurt. Sons readily pick up on this behaviour and can become adept at feeding their parents yet more tales of horror to gain extra sympathy and attention.

- Avoiding premature judgement. Sometimes parents will react angrily to facts reported by their son, but on investigation by the School, these ‘facts’ are sometimes not accurate. It is wise to test facts before making judgements.
- Being patient. The School is committed to investigating a bullying allegation in a manner that protects the rights of all involved, including the bully. This is not the School failing to take immediate action to punish someone, it is the School exercising procedural fairness. It is also important to let the School look into the matter rather than challenging the bully directly, or the parents of the bully.
- For younger children – know your child’s password and occasionally monitor social networking sites. They should be aware you will do so.
- Being supportive. Dealing with a son who is a bully can be particularly difficult for a parent. Some will support the School, others will not and will sometimes exhibit those same behaviours that have landed their son in trouble as a bully. On the other side of the equation are parents that are outraged because their son has been bullied. This can lead to the School being sandwiched between two sets of angry parents. Support and understanding is sought from parents of alleged bullies and alleged victims when the School is investigating an accusation of bullying.

Finally

The King’s School is committed to providing a safe and secure environment for its students. In order to achieve this end, the School will review its anti-bullying policies and procedures from time to time. If there are any within The King’s community who would like to recommend improvements to the School’s anti-bullying policy, you are welcome to send your ideas to the Deputy Headmaster or the Head of the Preparatory School.
